Don't let cyber criminals gain access to your webcam

You don't have to look far to find a webcam. They're on your laptop, tablet, and smartphone. It's great to be able to chat with friends or family and see their faces, but webcams also pose a danger to your privacy and security.

Hackers can disable the light that normally signals when your camera is in use. They can view your home or office, listen to conversations, gain access to your screen and view personal information. Help protect yourself from this type of cyber threat posed by hackers and follow these six easy steps.
